"I've never had cancer. But I'd be crazy to ignore it. I know many cancers can be cured if they're detected early. But you've got to know the warning signals. Change in bowel or bladder habits. A sore that does not heal. Unusual bleeding or discharge. Thickening or lump in breast or elsewhere. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing. Obvious change in wart or mole. Nagging cough or hoarseness.

"If one of them appears, see your doctor right away. The odds are you don't have cancer. But only your doctor can tell you that for sure."

CHANGES IN BEEKEEPER INDEMNITY PROGRAM ANNOUNCED BY USDA

Effective July 15, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) will no longer make Beekeeper Indemnity Program payments on queen bee nuclei losses which occur between Aug. 15 and Dec. 31 each year. (Queen bee nuclei are miniature colonies used in the production of queen bees for sale). Current provisions of the program permit payments on queen nuclei losses up to Oct. 1.

USDA has also changed the final date for adjusting the degree of loss on bee colonies from Nov. 1 to Oct. 1.

On April 28, USDA issued a notice of proposed rule-making regarding changes in the program regulations, inviting interested persons to submit comments and suggestions. Persons responding to the notice indicated that the main shipping season for queen bees occurs between March and July each year, although some queen bee breeders maintain their operations longer into the year.

The Oct. 1 deadline date for changes in the degree of loss does not prohibit a payment on a loss of bees that occurs after that date, but only a deadline for adjustments of losses that occurred before Oct. 1. The change will not significantly affect the payments to beekeepers but will improve the administration of the program.

The honey bee is important to the U.S. economy because it is the major pollinator of legume seeds and fruit and vegetable crops. The Beekeeper Indemnity Program provides payments to beekeepers who have suffered losses as a result of the use of insecticides which have been registered and approved for use by the federal government.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES VIRGINIAN

Alvin R. Clements, President and Chief Executive Officer, stated that the improvement in earnings reflected continued favorable interest rates and the benefits of expense control and personnel reduction programs. Clements also said that this performance is particularly significant in that improved earnings were achieved without heavy reliance on tax benefits and with the inclusion of a $613,692 addition to loan loss reserves, more than double the amount set aside in the second quarter of 1974.

Fidelity American Bankshares, Inc. is a Lynchburg based multi-bank holding company. As of June 30, 1975, it operated 15 commercial banks with 82 branches in 43 Virginia cities and towns. At June 30, 1975, the combined deposits of these banks were $668 million and total assets were $797 million.
